I am now doing voluntary work for Epsom Hospital Radio and currently do a show on a Friday evenings 8 to 10 and you can listen to it if you are in the UK. This week as i put this newsletter together, but the following Friday and it loving every minute of it. I real dream come true. I would encourage volunteering as it is so rewarding and went to an award afternoon for volunteers in surrey for the NHS.

It was an afternoon tea and everyone was so friendly and should get awards for the work they do and so encouraging.

It was at Epsom Racecourse and met some really wonderful people.

The picture below was a picture I took as I was going into the grounds and so iconic.

So I will be planning trips for the holidays and love visiting the south coast and my son wants to try and walk from Epsom to London Waterloo, and have tried walking from London Waterloo to Epsom but got as far as Clapham Junction, but going to give it a try. I will film if we do.

I am glad Henry likes walking and he also loves trains so going to plan train rides and look at getting a rail card again, as they can save you a lot of money and see if I can prebook to make it cheaper. Now my son is 10 years old now has to pay for a ride on the overground trains.

There are different trips in London you can do, like last year we took the Uber Boat from London Waterloo to North Greenwich and it was really good fun and did it again but to Putney and had a lovely meal by the river.

The picture I took was from the Uber Boat and is my picture of the O2 and you can use Oyster card and then we went to Shepperton where there was a lock. See last photo below and was a bit of a walk but enjoyable. We are thinking of going to places like Weymouth where I've never been and to Poole in Dorset which I like to visit and has a harbour and near some nice place to walk around. I love being near the sea as I find it so calming and feel so good when near the sea. So will be posting and so means more content to come.
