

Having Fun As A Family

As the Summer Holidays begin it is good if you can do things as a family and not having to spend too much

> Have a family garden party where you make platters of fruit, dips make sure that people don't double dip, some sweets and have balloons, bubbles and if you have some shade have seating there and in the sun too, but where your children and family can cool down and some music

> Go and see a sport. It depends where. This time of year you have rugby events on and the football season will be back and good to go to a lower league club to watch some football.

> Play cards or dominoes and make it a yearly event or a family tournament to make it fun and where everyone wins and play skittles in the garden and great for a family garden party or on in a park. Be Careful with BBQ as near fields there is the risk of bush fires depending where you live.

> Take a boat trip. You can find deals on sites such as Groupon and we often go and see shows at the local Polka Theatre or The Rose Theatre in Kingston and great if you do have children, for all ages.

> Have a different holiday like visiting and stay in a Caravan or Airbnb, and visit a local farm. My husband, son and I are going to a Farm Retreat and really looking forward to it and found it via Bookings.com and no not sponsored.

> Go to a park for a picnic and all play a sport that everyone can play. As a kid when we used to go camping, my brother and I with my parents and we'd all play rounders or cricket and they had a lovely country pub nearby and would go on holiday with the other families to Rye as my dad played in a football team and to Menorca.
