2025

It is now half of the year gone. My son breaks up for the school holidays and I am really excited about it.

I will be spending time with my son walking, we soon on holiday at a Farm Retreat this year which is going to be a new experience and had great reviews and I like trying out different places and hope to take a trip to the seaside like we did last year. We took a trip to Eastbourne and it was fantastic.

I like to have fish n chips, dipping donuts and Nougat .

I am currently watching TV of U2 singing at Live AID concert in the 80's and I remember my dad switching over to it but turned to another channel so never saw it and do feel I missed out somewhat. It is good to see who performed and watched it with total surprise.

The Tennis was good, it is amazing how quickly it starts and then next its over. It is worth checking out Wimbledon, especially up at Wimbledon Village where all the stores and restaurants etc decorate for the Tennis Event that has so much history and was good to Britain did well in the men's doubles and going to at some point go, even if it is once, to see the tennis at Wimbledon Tennis court, having a Pimm's and Lemonade along with the famous strawberries and cream.

My mum took me to see the Rocky Horror Show with Jason Donovan and it was brilliant. I never thought I'd see Jason Donovan in stockings and Suspenders and I talked about in my last Newsletter in June went to see Billy Idol at Wembley Arena.

We have been doing some walks at the weekends which I posted on my Instagram:

The first one was to Putney and had a meal in The Boathouse because my son had inset day at the end of June and then the Saturday walked from Putney by the river to Hammersmith. I did feature some clips on one on my vlogs: <https://youtu.be/zt60Lz6JDuU>

Then the weekend after we walked from Blackfriars to Pimlico. I love walking and got more planned this week after my son breaks up from school on Tuesday. So lots to do and look forward to.
