So How Are You Celebrating Christmas this year?

Is it going to be a quiet one?

I have picked up some Mince Pies and my husband has too along with a Christmas Pudding has been buying tubs of Quality Street, Heroes etc

In terms of gifts I have 5 by ordering two items by mistake and a great gift and the person will be so surprised.

TK Maxx is great place for gifts and so will be looking but seen some great gifts on Amazon. See these gifts that I have found.

As a kid I loved Christmas it was my favourite time of year. Then for a while my Spark for Christmas faded and now I love it again and looking forward to it because it is always so chilled.

I am going to decorate the whole house and going to get a few new bits and really be a festive dream.

I will be checking out the Charity shops and want to go to a Christmas market.

We, my husband, son and I, are going for Turkey Fillets as it is only going to be the three of us. We will be going on our Christmas day walk that we loved to do each year and wonder if it will be a white Christmas?

Each year I love the Christmas specials. Call the Midwife is a favourite, along with Strictly Come Dancing and comedies like Not Going Out and love watching Only Fools and Horses and Friends. I wonder what films will be on. My son loves Polar Express and The Grinch so I do expect to watch, this year at some point. I love the episode of Vicar of Dibley where by Dawn ends up eating about 6 Christmas dinners and is crawling back home.

What is your Favourite film, TV or Episode of a programme that comes on the TV?

I will be doing my radio show for Epsom Hospital Radio on Sunday 4 to 6pm on the 14th December going to do a Christmas themed show, so if you are in the UK and have internet why not check in.

The lights in Epsom are up and can't wait to see the Christmas Decor in London. My son and I are doing a bus tour.

How many of you are off to a Panto this year?

I love Panto. It is always good fun and something we do as a family.

Then it will be the new year.

Boy it is coming fast but ready to make some new Life Goals and I have begun to plan for 2026, but going to enjoy the rest of 2025 and let time do what it needs to do and relax and enjoy Christmas with all its glory.

So have a Good one and see you in December.
