

May Newsletter 2026

Hello all! It has been such a whirlwind. We may have a new Prime Minister, we've seen people traveling in space and sadly more people suffering because of knife crime and it does worry me.

I wrote a blog on my parenting blog called <https://theparentingadventurestipsandtricks.wordpress.com/2026/05/20/what-will-our-kids-futures-like-with-what-is-going-on-in-the>

At my sons school they do searches by a body scanner and check their bags and it is a shame that they're doing that. I have seen anti-social behaviour and not enough is being done and I fear for my sons future. Having self checkout tills, is this going to take over jobs in stores? Will we have a high street.

My love of TKMaxx and M&S has grown and trying to support the high street the best I can and like paying cash rather than my card or phone.

I have written more blogs for my Life Coaching Programme Summer Project 2026 and so check out my Pinterest of posts and some quotes and this will finish at the end of August.

It is half term for schools in the UK and so we are going to enjoy the Bank holiday but having a coffee, our thing and be chilling and having nice dinners and will be catching up on the things I don't often get to do and want to work on scrapbooking and just enjoy the free time.

If you didn't know I have a new book out When Mothers Are real, available from amazon via Kindle and Paperback and working on a parenting book, which I want to publish this year and will let you know when it can be pre-ordered and working on Mum&Me book 2 This will be out in 2027 and working on another Non-Fiction book so a lot to watch out for.

I will share details of my Autumn Reset and how half term went. We have many things planned and going to enjoy the rest of May and will be in June going to the Hampton Court Festival and plan to go up London and exploring.

In June it is birthdays for me. My husband and my niece share the same birthday and then the Epsom Derby coming which is really good to go to. So see you in June.
